Two Men are Killed in Exchange of Shots

Marshal Of Blue Springs, Mo., and Stranger Die As Result Of Pistol Duel

Kansas City, Nov. 5—Two men were killed in a revolver tragedy at Blue Springs, near here, this morning, according to reports received by police.

Alonzo Hertig, marshal at Blue Springs, and W. S. Young, a stranger in the little community, met death in an exchange of shots which took place when, it is believed, the marshal attempted to arrest the stranger.

Only one revolver was used in the shooting. Only two shots were fired. The marshal was shot through the stomach and Young through the heart.

Dr. H. E. Moss, deputy coroner, who found the two bodies lying on the floor of the telephone office in Blue Springs, advanced the theory that Young, a powerful man, overpowered the marshal in a struggle and wrenched the latter's revolver from him. The marshal is believed to have recovered his gun in some manner and shot the stranger.

It is said that early this morning, Young entered the telephone office and made advances to a telephone operator. The marshal came to the office in response to a call and the fatal shooting followed in the attempt to arrest the intruder.

Two letters were found in Young's pocket which led to his identification.

BANK IS FORCED TO CLOSE ITS DOORS

UNION NATIONAL BANK, BELOIT, KAN., IN EXAMINER'S HANDS.

TOO MUCH BAD PAPER

Deposits are Said to Total About One Million Dollars—Investigation Is Started Today.

Beloit, Kan., Nov. 5.—The Union National Bank of Beloit failed to open for business today, after an all day and night session attended by directors of the bank and the national bank examiner.

L. D. Noone, the examiner, started an investigation of the bank's books today.

Deposits are said to total about one million dollars.

Bad paper and speculation in oil stock are said to be responsible for the failure.

This is the first failure of a national bank in Kansas since 1914. An attempt to effect a reorganization at the meeting of the bank directors was unsuccessful and the decision to close resulted.

It was revealed that the bank held a note against L. A. Mergen, cashier, for $15,009. It was also brought out that Frank Mergen, the cashier's father, had borrowed money from the bank and that another member of the family is said to have been lent $8,000 on a personal note.

Says Officers' Clique Rules Vets' Bureau

D. O. Smith, Government Expert, Testifies to Many Cases of Graft in Administrations of Bureau.

Washington, Nov. 5.—A clique of favorites, holding high offices in the United States Veterans' Bureau, disregarded the lows of government to pay out funds to their friends, D. O. Smith, government expert, testified today before the Senate investigating committee. The clique used its power in paying unjust compensation claims.

The witness called attention to a number of cases of bad management during the administrations of Forbes and Hines, the present director.

Dr. Smith declared that numerous cases of discrepancies were found. He cited a case where a Dr. Ballard has reported that a Filipino soldier was not suffering from tuberculosis, when the facts showed that the man had been dead seven weeks and his death certificate showed he died from tuberculosis.

"Did this sort of thing happen often?" Smith was asked.

"Yes, it seems that men were selected for high positions in the Bureau not so much for their medical ability but for their cohesive qualities —the quality of sticking together."

GOLDEN WEDDING IS OBSERVED SUNDAY

MR. AND MRS. GEORGE GAY CELEBRATE GOLDEN JUBILEE.

ALL CHILDREN PRESENT

Seven Sons and Daughters Help Parents in Gladsome Festivities—Many Beautiful Flowers.

November 4, 1873, marked the beginning of a family life that has had many beautiful, happy and ennobling occasions, but the climax came yesterday when Mr. and Mrs. George Gay, 416 North Walnut street, celebrated their golden wedding.

This celebration was unusual from several different viewpoints. It is not often that all of a family of seven children live to see their parents complete a half century of wedded life, and can then meet to celebrate their joy with them.

The children are Mrs. Garrett Carnagey, Inavale, Nebr.; Mrs. E. M. Houchens, Maryville; Mrs. J. R. Lawson, Akron, Colo.; Miss Mabel Gay, Maryville; Mrs. J. G. Richardson and Earl Gay, Yuma, Colo.; and Roy Gay, King City, Mo. There are also thirteen grandchildren and two great grandchildren.

For the first time in eighteen years all the children were at home together. To help make the meeting time gladsome, and as a lasting remembrance of the day, a gold reading lamp was presented to the parents by their children.

The dining table was decorated with large bouquets of yellow chrysanthemums. One was a gift from the children, another was presented by other relatives and the third by the Epworth Class of the First Methodist Sunday School. The table was centered with a large angel food cake containing the following inscription: Nov. 4, 1873—50 years—Nov. 4, 1923. A big fat turkey brought from Colorado for the occasion also occupied a prominent place on the table. Only the parents and their children were seated at the table in remembrance of the early family life, and for the first time for over a quarter of a century.

The other guests included E. M. Houchens, Mrs. Roy Gay, Ruth Houchens, Ora Richardson, Beulah and Goldie Gay Carnagey, Neva Ruth Gay and Vivian Marie Gay.

The day closed by most of the family attending church and then wishing for many more happy days together.

Mrs. E. M. Houchens and Miss Mabel Gay entertained the same company this afternoon at the home of the former, 816 North Walnut street. Additional relatives in attendance were Mr. and Mrs. C. D. Bellows, the Rev. and Mrs. Lane Douglas of Pickering, Dr. and Mrs. Jesse Miller, Mr. and Mrs. William Partridge and Mr. and Mrs. Wilson Wray.

Mr. and Mrs. Gay were married at the home of the latter's parents near Clayton, Ill., and in 1874 came to Nodaway County. They lived on a farm between Maryville and Ravenwood for several years and later returned to Illinois for a residence, spending a few years there. When they came to Nodaway County for the second time they located in the Harmony neighborhood. Five years ago they moved to Maryville. Mr. Gay is 75 years old and his wife is seven years his junior, and both are enjoying good health.

BONAR LAW'S BODY IN FAMOUS ABBEY

LATE PREMIER IS LAID TO REST NEAR UNKNOWN WARRIOR.

WAS PRIDE OF ENGLAND

He Was One of England's Greatest and Most Beloved Statesmen—Solemn and Impressive Ceremonies.

London, Nov. 5.—With impressive and solemn ceremonies, the ashes of the late premier, Andrew Bonar Law, one of England's most beloved statesmen, were buried today in Westminster Abbey, near the grave of England's unknown warrior.

The Prince of Wales, heir to the British throne, acted in the double capacity of representative of King George, and the chief pallbearer. The actual coffin bearers were four members of the King's own Scottish Guard, and four members of the royal air force in which unit the son of the deceased lost his life for England during the war.

Bonar Law was the first British premier since Gladstone to be honored by burial in the Abbey.

It was held to be a fitting tribute that the ashes be deposited close to the grave of the Unknown soldier, since the late premier assumed office while in poor health and literally died in the service of his country.

There were two services—the first at the St. Columbia Presbyterian Church, which Law attended. The ashes had rested in this church since the cremation Saturday.

Mound City School Cancels Game Here

Was To Have Been Played Friday On College Field—Contest Was Forfeited To Maryville

The high school game with Mound City, scheduled for Friday of this week, has been cancelled by the Mound City High School, it was announced this morning. This game was to have been played on the College gridiron.

In the letter cancelling the game and forfeiting it to Maryville, it was said that this is the first year of football there for several years. The team there is made up of inexperienced men and they have met with reverses this season. The Mound City school authorities hesitate to send their men against what they term an "experienced team," and so the game this week was cancelled and forefeited to Maryville.

Efforts are now being made by the local high school to schedule another game for this Friday and a definite announcement will be made later.

Says Medicine Agents Must Secure License

Fred Smith, county clerk, says that he has heard that there are a number of patent medicine agents working in Nodaway County and that several of them have no license. According to the state law such agents are required to secure a license from the county clerk in the county which they are working before any sales can be made. Mr. Smith says that he will be glad to issue a license to these men, but unless they appear at his office for a permit he may be forced to restrain the agents for patent medicines from canvassing in the county.

WALTON'S PLEA TO CONTAIN ADMISSION

OF CHARGES IN IMPEACHMENT INDICTMENT.

TO EXPAIN HIS ACTS

Governor's Answer, 125 Typewritten Pages, Will Deal With Each of 25 Charges.

Oklahoma City, Nov. 5—Frank admission of many of the charges in the impeachment indictments will be contained in the plea of Governor J. C. Walton to be filed with the state Senate Wednesday afternoon.

The information was obtained from the defense attorneys today.

Walton, however, will place an entirely different interpretation upon his official acts than has been placed by the House of Representatives which drew up the indictments.

"Explanation of these acts of Governor Walton will be made," the defense said. "It will be shown clearly that the acts were not violations of the law and not impeachable."

Charges, such as are considered by the defense as impeachable, will be flatly denied.

The answer, the defense announced, will contain approximately 125 pages of closely typewritten material and will deal in careful detail with each of the twenty-two charges against the Governor.

Defense attorneys were to confer today at Walton's office at the statehouse. They are expected to complete the Governor's answer by tomorrow.

Oklahoma City, Nov. 5—The movement to drive through the Oklahoma Senate and House of Reprecentatives anti-Ku Klux Klan legislation prior to the completion of the Walton impeachment trial, apparently had the upper hand today.

House and senate members are insisting that before final action in the Legislature to unmask the Klan, that investigating committees should give a full report to the Legislature before the bill goes through.

The House and Senate are scheduled to meet at 1:30 o'clock this afternoon.

During the day, committees probing various state departments of the state government, were in session.

A hint that Governor Walton's affairs may come under the eye of the federal government was given out by the house investigating committee today. The federal government, it is understood, desires information regarding Walton's use of the federal truck fund and his employment of the U. S. mails to collect funds. Walton's attorneys insisted that no irregularities would be found in this regard.

With no further official action at the Walton trial likely until Wednesday when the suspended governor will enter a "not guilty" plea to the twenty-two articles of impeachment, there was a noticeable lapse of proceedings in the trial today.

A PREFERENTIAL STATE CONFERENCE.

(Missouri State Journal.)

The State Journal favors action by the Democratic State Committee, at its meeting, looking to the holding of a statewide conference in May, to make advisory recommendations for the various state offices, subject to the action of the primary in August. In urging this action, it is believed that such a conference would contribute to the party's general interests, clarify the situation and enable the party to present a stronger front in the campaign of 1924.

A method would thus be provided, in a fair and open way, for obtaining an informal expression of the preference of the Democrats of Missouri for the different offices to be filled, and develop a consensus of opinion that would make the nominees stronger in November.

If a conference is held, it should be arranged so as to provide for the election of delegates from every county, and ward in the City of St. Louis, by county and ward conferences, elected in turn by delegates chosen from each precinct, at precinct meetings.

The basis of representation ought to be sufficiently large to secure a wide distribution of the delegates. For example: If the basis of representation should be one delegate for each 500 votes cast for Atkinson in 1920, or major fraction, giving each county and ward not less than two delegates, there would be approximately 1,200 delegates. In the counties, and wards in the city, delegates should be elected from each precinct upon a liberal basis, say, one delegate for each 50 votes cast for Atkinson, each precinct being entitled to at least one delegate.

A conference thus constituted, preceded by county and precinct meetings upon such a basis of representation, would be highly representative of the Democracy of the state.

There would be twelve hundred men and women sitting in the conference at large.

Necessarily, there would be approximately twelve thousand delegates in the various county and ward conferences, elected to choose the delegates to the state gathering.

Many thousands more would participate in the precinct meetings to elect delegates to the county and ward conferences.

Can there be any doubt that such an outpouring of the Democrats of the state at these meetings would fail to secure a fair expression of opinion as to the wishes of the Democracy as to party nominees?

The state conference itself could pass upon the advisability of making recommendations, and as to the form and manner of making them. Its decisions would be reached by a majority vote. Therefore, any candidate receiving its endorsement would go before the primary with a substantial force behind him—a real call to public service, and it is highly probable that the conference's selections would be nominated in the primary by a majority vote. Both the party and the nominee are strengthened by majority nominations. Some states require the holding of second primaries until some candidates receive a majority.

If any candidate, not endorsed, chose to continue his race, no restrictions could be imposed upon him. The action of the preferential conference would only be advisory. One of the inalienable rights of an American citizen is the right to run for office, provided he meets the legal qualifications. None can bar him. But a political party, with its future existence at stake, with its principles and policies held in the balance, has a right to take into consideration the wisdom of nominating any man or woman for office, and there is no better way than by this preferential conference.

A preferential conference, preceding the primary, properly safeguarded so as to make it thoroughly representative, followed by the general primary, would enable the party to make nominations by a majority vote; it would place the interests of the party above the individual condidate's interest and would tend to promote the nomination of the strongest candidates.

In addition to the consideration of questions to be settled at the primary, the state conference ought to be made a great Democratic state rally, with addresses from national leaders. It would bring men and women together from every county and help arouse interest in party work, and party enthusiasm. The Journal does not believe that the value of a great meeting of this kind could be underestimated.

It is essential that the Democratic party should win next year, as the Journal has previously pointed out.

Mount Tabor

Seventy-five persons enjoyed the hospitality of the Mount Tabor school Wednesday night at a Hallowe'en party. Group games broke up the stiffness and formality which often characterizes social gatherings. A rapid dressing contest and a football game in which a walnut was sent scuttling back and forth across the gridiron created the most excitement and merriment. Fortune tellers, witches and ghosts put in an early appearance and creditably exercised all the supernatural powers with which they are supposedly endowed. Refreshments of pie, coffee and popcorn added the finishing touches to a very enjoyable evening. The schoolhouse had been appropriately decorated by the children and different ones had been delegated to make the necessary preparation for the games and stunts so we are indebted to them for the success of the affair.

Superintendent Leslie Somerville quietly walked in upon the school Monday morning, October 29. He expressed himself as pleased with the work the children were doing and especially with their spirit or attitude toward their work.

The school board remodeled the toilets so they would meet the sanitary requirements of all first class schools. Roy Pruitt, assisted by some of the school boys did the work.

Lee McCumber is building the newest type bungalow garage.

Elmer Livengood and Bolton Neff spent the first of the week duck hunting on the Missouri River near Corning. They brought back four ducks and three hundred pounds of fish, the last being caught with a silver bait.

Harry Anderson was another one of our neighbors who could not resist the call of the wild. We did not learn the results of his hunt.

Eddie and George Bishop and their families returned Thursday morning from Akron, Colorado where they had been called to the bedside of their mother, Mrs. Bishop. They left her much improved in health.

Sammie Adams has been having a tussle with Lagrippe. He is well on the way to recovery now and hopes to be back in high school soon.

Miss Davison and Miss Donahue, county nurses made a physical examination of the school children on Wednesday October 31, returning on Friday to test the eyes, not having had time at the previous visit.

At the Hallowe'en party Wednesday night the Mount Tabor Community Club was revived and new officers chosen. Earnest Smith was chosen president and Dorothy Anderson secretary. Vernon Riggle, Pauline Farley, Bessie Johnston and Noemi May were appointed on the program committee. The first program will be given at the box supper. Clevia Ecker will read the "paper."

The seats in the school room are being fastened to one by fours so they can be moved when it is necessary to do so.

Mount Tabor folks "stick" to the end of a project, Earl Clark and wife, Harold Johnston and wife, Harold Johnston and wife and Helen Pruitt came early Thursday morning, swept and scrubbed the school-house. By ten o'clock it was impossible to tell that the Hallowe'en faries had held a revel at the schoolhouse the night before. Such kind service is certainly appreciated.

The A, B and C classes were given a panel upon which to place a Hallowe'en scene. Vernon Riggle, Pauline Farley and Dorothy Anderson acted as judges and gave their decision in favor of the C class which had chosen to illustrate the story "A Hallowe'en Scare." Grinning jack-o-lanterns or evil spirits as the Indians thought them produced fright enough to send them scurrying in every direction, and made a very realistic scene.

Gasoline lights have been bought for the schoolhouse. The following persons have contributed fifty cents each toward the bill: Vernon Riggle, Fred Snodderly, Jack McIntosh, Lee McCumber, Earnest Smith, Ray Ecker Earl Clark, Harold Johnston and Roy Pruitt.

The BROWN MOUSE

by Herbert Quick

COPYRIGHT BY THE BOBBS-MERRILL COMPANY

CHAPTER VIII.—Jim has Christmas dinner at Colonel Woodruff's, and listening to him, Jennie begins to do some thinking concerning his ability and his prospects.

CHAPTER IX.—In the evening Jim, as well as he knows how, courts Jennie, without, however, making much progress, though she is quickly losing her poor opinion of him.

CHAPTER X.—Jennie, elected county superintendent of schools, receives so many complaints from people of the district concerning Jim's methods of teaching that she finds herself compelled formally to ask for his resignation. After she has left, Jim is visited by Colonel Woodruff, who strongly urges him to refuse to resign, and offers to back him. Jim agrees to stick, for a while at least.

CHAPTER XI.—A meeting of the school board, which had been gathered to "get" Jim, is confronted by Jennie, who upholds him. He conducts an examination of his pupils at the meeting, to prove that he is not neglecting their "book learning" by the introduction of other subjects which he considers of importance. The splendid showing made by the children converts many, who had doubted, to his views.

CHAPTER XII.—The novel ideas which Jim has introduced have been talked about outside the county, and he is visited by Professor Withers, extension lecturer at the state university, who invites him to deliver an address at the next annual meeting of the Farmers' institute.

CHAPTER XIII.—Professor Withers is impressed by many of the innovations made by Irwin, and so informs Colonel Woodruff and Jennie, somewhat to the astonishment of both. The colonel suggests to Jim that he (the colonel) seek election to the school board, replacing Cornelius Bonner, implacable enemy of Jim Irwin.

CHAPTER XIV.—Feigning sickness, Newton Bronson, youngster whom Irwin has redeemed from idleness and folly and set on the right path, and who almost worships the teacher, keeps his father from voting at the school board election. Bronson is a friend of Bonner, and would have voted for him. As it is, Colonel Woodruff is chosen for the position, owing to Bronson's absence.

CHAPTER XV.—Jim convinces the farmers of the district of the advantages to be derived from a co-operative creamery, and it is agreed to establish one. His rise to a position of leadership in the community, and high responsibility, has made a distinct difference in Jennie's feelings toward Jim, which she is forced to acknowledge to herself.

CHAPTER XVI.—In his address at the Farmers' Institute Jim makes a distinctly favorable impression. After the meeting he is offered a position as teacher in another district, with a considerable advance in salary, and agrees to consider it.

CHAPTER XVII

Think of It.

Ames was an inspiration. Jim Irwin received from the great agricultural college more real education in this one trip than many students get from a four years' course in its halls; for he had spent ten years in getting ready for the experience. The great farm of hundreds of acres, all under the management of experts, the beautiful campus, the commodious classrooms and laboratories, and especially the barns, the greenhouses, gardens, herds and flocks filled him with a sort of apostolic joy.

"Every school," said he to Professor Withers, "ought to be doing a good deal of the work you have to do here."

"I'll admit," said the professor, "that much of our work in agriculture is pretty elementary."

"It's intermediate school work," said Jim. "It's wrong to force boys and girls to leave their homes and live in a college to get so much of what they should have before they're ten years old."

"There's something in what you say," said the professor, "but some experiment station men seem to think that agriculture in the common schools will take from the young men and women the felt need, and therefore the desire to come to the college."

"If you can't give them anything better than high-school work," said Jim, "that will be so; but if the science and art of agriculture is what I think it is, it would make them hungry for the advanced work that really can't be done at home. To make the children wait until they're twenty is to deny them more than half what the college ought to give them—and make them pay for what they don't get."

"I think you're right," said the professor.

"Give us the kind of schools I ask for," cried Jim, "and I'll fill a college like this in every congressional district in Iowa, or I'll force you to tear this down and build larger."

More nearly happy, and rather shorter of money than he had recently been, Jim journeyed home among the companions from his own neighborhood, in a frenzy of plans for the future. Mr. Hofmyer had dropped from his mind, until Con Bonner, his old enemy, drew him aside in the vestibule of the train and spoke to him in the mysterious manner peculiar to politicians.

"What kind of a proposition did that man Hofmeister make you?" he inquired. "He asked me about you, and I told him you're a crackerjack."

"I'm much obliged," replied Jim.

"No use in back-cappin' a fellow that's tryin' to make somethin' of himself," said Bonner. "That ain't good politics, nor good sense. Anything to him?"

"He offered me a salary of seventy-five dollars a month to take charge of his school," said Jim.

"Well," said Con, "we'll be sorry to lose yeh, but you can't turn down anything like that."

"I don't know," said Jim. "I haven't decided."

Bonner scrutinized his face sharply, as if to find out what sort of game he was playing.

"Well," said he, at last, "I hope you can stay with us, o' course. I'm licked, and I never squeal. If the rist of the district can stand your kind of tricks, I can. And say, Jim"—here he grew still more mysterious—"if you do stay, some of us would like to have you be enough of a Democrat to go into the next convention fr county superintendent."

"Why," replied Jim, "I never thought of such a thing!"

"Well, think of it," said Con. "The county's close, and wid a pop'lar young educator—an' a farmer, too, it might be done. Think of it."

Jim was almost dazed at the number of "propositions" of which he was now required to "think"—and Bonner's did not at first impress him as having anything back of it but blarney. He was to find out later, however, that the wily Con had made up his mind that the ambition of Jim to serve the rural schools in a larger sphere might be used for the purpose of bringing to earth what he regarded as the soaring political ambitions of the Woodruff family. To split the forces which had defeated Mr. Bonner in his own school district, with the very instrument used by the colonel at the last school election—that, to Mr. Bonner, would be a fine thing.

Jim had scarcely taken his seat in the car, facing Jennie Woodruff and Bettina Hansen in the Pullman, when Columbus Brown, pathmaster of the road district and only across the way from residence in the school district, came down the aisle and called Jim to the smoking-room.

"Did an old fellow named Hoffman from Pottawatomie county ask you to leave us and take his school?" he asked.

"Mr. Hofmyer," said Jim, "—yes, he did."

"Well," said Columbus, "I don't want to ask you to stand in your own light, but I hope you won't let him toll you off there among strangers. We're proud of you, Jim, and we don't want to lose you."

"We're Proud of You, Jim."

Proud of him! Sweet music to the underling's ears! Jim blushed and stammered.

"The fact is," said Columbus, "I know that Woodruff district job hain't big enough for you any more; but we can make it bigger. If you'll stay, I believe we can pull off a deal to consolidate some of them districts, and make you boss of the whole shooting match."

"I appreciate this, Clumb," said Jim, "but I don't believe you can do it."

"Well, think of it," said Columbus. "And don't do anything till you talk with me and a few of the other boys."

"Think of it" again!

A fine home-coming it was for Jim, with the colonel waiting at the station with a double sleigh, and the chance to ride into the snowy country in the same seat with Jennie—a chance which was blighted by the colonel's placing Bettina and Nils Hansen in the broad rear seat, and Jim in front with himself. The colonel would not allow him to get out and walk when he could really have reached home more quickly by doing so; no, he set the Hansens down at their door, took Jennie home, and then drove the lightened sleigh merrily to the humble cabin of the rather excited young schoolmaster.

"Did you make any deal with those people down in the western part of the state?" asked the colonel. "Jennie wrote me that you've got an offer."

"No," said Jim, and he told the colonel about the proposal of Mr. Hofmyer.

"Well," said the colonel, "in my capacity of wild-eyed reformer, I've made up my mind that the first four miles in the trip is to make the rural teacher's job a bigger job. It's got to be a man's size, woman's size job, or we can't get real men and real women to stay in the work."

"I think that's a statesmanlike formulation of it," said Jim.

"Well," said the colonel, "don't turn down the Pottawatomie county job until we have a chance to see what we can do. I'll get some kind of a meeting together, and what I want you to do is to use this offer as a club over this helpless school district. What we need is to be held up. Do the Jesse James act, Jim!"

"I can't, Colonel!"

"Yes, you can, too. Will you try it?"

"I want to treat everybody fairly," said Jim, "including Mr. Hofmyer. I don't know what to do, hardly."

"Well, I'll get the meeting together," said the colonel, "and in the meantime, think of what I've said."

Another thing to think of! Jim rushed into the house and surprised his mother, who had expected him to arrive after a slow walk from town through the snow. Jim caught her in his arms, from which she was released a moment later, quite flustered and blushing.

"Why, James," said she, "you seem excited. What's happened?"

"Nothing, mother" he replied, "except that I believe there's just a possibility of my being a success in the world!"

"My boy, my boy!" said she, laying her hand on his arm, "if you were to die tonight, you'd die the greatest success any boy ever was—if your mother is any judge."

Jim kissed her, and went up to his attic to change his clothes. Inside the waistcoat was a worn envelope, which he carefully opened, and took from it a letter much creased from many foldings. It was the old letter from Jennie, written when the comical mistake had been made of making him the teacher of the Woodruff school. He read only the sentence in which Jennie had told of her father's interest in Jim's success, ending with the underscored words, "I'm for you, too."

"I wonder," said Jim, as he went out to do the evening's tasks, "I wonder if she is for me!"

SOME CO-EDS PLAY "SHINNY;" OTHERS LEARN TO SWIM

Emporia, Kan., Oct. 31—Physical training of women in the Kansas State Teachers College here is being overlooked not, it would seem from the fact that 1,185 are enrolled in the various courses of the physical training department.

One hundred ninety-six women are learning to swim, 71 are playing hockey, or "shinny" as it once was called, and 31 practice three times a week on the K. S. T. C.'s tennis court.

In these classes only gymnasium credit is given, and all women are required to have four credits in "gym" for graduation. A credit is given for each semester of work. Regular credit, which can be applied to the bachelor of science degree, is given in courses where students are largely specializing in physical training.

COMB SAGE TEA INTO GRAY HAIR

Darkens Beautifully and Restores its Natural Color and Lustre At Once

Common garden sage brewed into a heavy tea, with sulphur and alcohol added, will turn gray, streaked and faded hair beautifully dark and luxuriant. Mixing the Sage Tea and Sulphur recipe at home, though, is troublesome. An easier way is to get the ready-to-use preparation improved by the addition of other ingredients a large bottle, at little cost, at drug stores, known as "Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Compound," thus avoiding a lot of muss.

While gray, faded hair is not sinful, we all desire to retain our youthful appearance and attractiveness. By darkening your hair with Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Compound, no one can tell, because it does it so naturally, so evenly. You just dampen a sponge or soft brush with it and draw this through your hair, taking one small strand at a time; by morning all gray hairs have disappeared. After another application or two your hair becomes beautifully dark, glossy, soft and luxuriant and you appear years younger.

The Effect Of Good Roads

Licking News: To show the difference in good roads and the kind we used to have: Two years ago it took two days to drive a load of hogs to Salem. One day this week O. O. Taylor took a car load of sheep to Salem in the forenoon and a car load of hogs to Rolla in the afternoon of the same day and shipped them out, and used the same truck for hauling both loads. And they say there is no such thing as progress. There is, if you have the vision and follow it up.—Salem Missouri Post.

Firm, Plump Flesh!

MANY are the eyes that are turned to gaze with keen admiration on the well developed, healthy girl no matter where she may be—on the rapidly moving thoroughfare or gliding gracefully over the dance floor.

All eyes turn because we all appreciate the girl with the figure so firm and plump—the girl with radiantly red cheeks, cheeks that carry a touch of roses from nature's own garden——the girl with the sparkling eyes, keen and sharp—the girl with buoyancy and the swing of youth.

Not necessarily an out-of-doors girl. Just a girl with ever increasing blood cells. Just a girl filled with the vim and vigor of youth.

S. S. S., since 1826, has stood for increased blood cells. S. S. S. means restored strength—rekindled vitality—added energy. Take S. S. S. and watch the bloom of youth return to your cheeks. Watch that flabby, ill nouriahed flesh fade away before flesh that is firm and plump. Red blood cells will do it and S. S. S. will build them. It contains only pure vegetable ingredients. S. S. S. is sold at all good drug stores. The large size bottle is more economical.

ELECTIONS TO BE HELD TOMORROW

KENTUCKY EXPECTED TO RETURN TO THE DEMOCRATS

DRIFT AWAY FROM G.O.P.

Dry and Wet Issue In Vermont In Election Of a United States Senator

Washington, November 5 — The elections Tuesday, with Governors to be elected in Kentucky, Mississippi and Maryland, a United States Senator in Vermont and six congressmen, four in New York, one in Illinois and one in Vermont, are not expected to be sufficient in their scope to indicate any decided national political drift.

Cordell Hull, chairman of the Democratic National Committee is confident that even though the respective parties make no gains, there will be such a decided falling off in Republican votes cast as to favor Democratic success next year.

Drift Away From G. O. P.

"There has been a steady drift away from the Republican party," said Hull. "The last November elections showed this in a surprising way in distinctly Republican states of the Northwest. The coming elections, where contests of a national interest are to be held, will be in the Eastern states, where the disaffection has not been so widespread. Reports received show that the Democratic tickets will receive larger support than in previous years.

"Kentucky will be reclaimed from the Republicans, and even Vermont, which had the distinction of being one of the two solidly nailed down Republican states in the 1912 national election, is showing strong Democratic tendencies. The sweep to the Democrats is very strong. I cannot credit the optimistic reports coming to us, and if I should accept them on their face value, I would predict the election of a Democratic Senator in that state, a relative of President Coolidge. We also expect to hold the Twenty-fourth Congressional District in New York, a Republican district which we gained last year, where a vacancy now exists."

Maryland and Mississippi will reelect Democratic governors, and even Republican leaders here admit that Kentucky will go Democratic. The Republicans have had several governors in Kentucky in the last thirty years, but have never been able to elect a Republican for two terms in succession. The issue there is continuation of the race course and taxation.

Kentucky and Racing.

The Democratic candidate, ex-Representative Fields, is favoring the upholding of the national pastime of the Blue Grass region, while the Republican nominee for Governor, States Attorney Dawson, has inherited the troubles of the Republican administration, especially the high tax rate imposed in Gov. Morrow's administration.

The most interesting contest, perhaps, is that in Vermont, where a United States Senator is to be elected to succeed the late Senator William P. Dillingham. The Republican nominee is Representative Porter H. Dale, his opponent is Park H. Pollard, a cousin of President Coolidge. There the issue is the dry and wet question. The Republican candidate is espousing strict enforcement of the prohibition law and the Democratic candidate is in favor of some modification.

The wet leaders are claiming that this normally dry state, of ancient piritanical tendencies, will show a decided wet sweep. Reports here are that the people of Vermont are heartily disgusted with the lack of enforcement of prohibition and their vote for a wet candidate can be interpreted, not for a modification of the law as much as a protest against the lax enforcement. If Vermont should not show a decided Republican plurality or happen to fall in the Democratic column, the wets say that will show that the people are against prohibition as at present enforced.

Chester Walters, 19, Disappears From Home

(St. Joseph Gazette)

Chester Walters, 19 years old, son of Mr. and Mrs. Walters, 2428 South Eighteenth street, who disappeared from home at 10 o'clock Friday morning has not been located. He was last seen while raking leaves in the front yeard. The police were asked to aid in the search for him Saturday morning.

Young Walters graduated from high school at Conception Junction last year. He had been employed at the Western Tablet company but recently was laid off. His parents said he had been rather despondent because of unemployment. They came to St. Joseph from Conception Junction last April. The youth had no bad habits and had never been in any trouble, they say, which might account for his disappearance, and the parents are at loss to account for his absence.

When he left, he was wearing blue overalls, a green coat and cap. He is 5 feet 8 inches tall, weighs about 120 pounds and has light hair and blue eyes.

It was received at the men's Bible Class, meeting in the I. O. O. F. hall at 9 o'clock yesterday morning.

The Rev. R. R. Brown of Omaha read the Scripture lesson and gave the prayer. In his prayer, he mentioned "the tabernacle meetings in progress at Maryville, Mo., conducted by Hamilton and Hamilton." One hundred twenty-nine men were in attendance at the class yesterday morning.

The tabernacle was filled last night and several were standing in the rear. Special music was given by Arthur J. Hamilton, assisted by a quartette. A children's chorus, at the right of the platform, was one of the features of the meeting last night.

Loose collections last night amounted to $548.74. There were forty-four additions to the church at the tabernacle yesterday. There will be no service here tonight as various community meetings will be held. A meeting will be held in the tabernacle tomorrow night, starting at 7:30 o'clock.

"Sarah Sidesteps" Will Be Produced By Chicago Lyceum Players—Ticket Sale Is Good

The ticket sale to the lyceum course, to be given this winter under the auspices of the Busy Men's Bible Class and the Wesleyan Bible Class of the First Methodist Church, is progressing nicely and it is expected that the required number of tickets will be sold before the opening number Wednesday night.

The Chicago Lyceum Players will present "Sarah Sidesteps," as the opening number of the local Lyceum course. This will be given Wednesday night at the First M. E. Church.

"Regarding "Sarah Sidesteps," the Trenton Daily Republican recently said:

The sentiment of the audience who attended the play given last night at the Methodist Church by the Chicago Lyceum Players was unanimously favorable to the players, especially to the girl playing the role of Sarah.

"Sarah Sidesteps" proved to be decidedly pleasing and the audience showed its appreciation of the girl's playing both during and after the performance."

Season tickets, to the lyceum course to be given this year sell for $2; a special price of $1.50 is being made to students. The price of the tickets for children to twelve years of age is $1. The single admission to the opening number Wednesday night is 75 cents.
